Community Police Review Commission invites public to meet new manager

RIVERSIDE, Calif. – The City of Riverside Community Police Review Commission is inviting the public to meet and greet the commission's new manager, Kevin Rogan.

A reception will be held at 5:30 p.m., Tuesday, in the Mayor's Ceremonial Room at City Hall.

Rogan has 25 years experience of working to strengthen the bonds between police and community with the Pomona Police Department, as well as having degrees in public administration and law. He has been a member of the California State Bar since 2003.

"I'm pleased to serve such a diverse community as Riverside," Rogan said. "The relationship between a community and the police is a passion of mine. It's most important to me that I earn the reputation for being fair-minded to all viewpoints."

The chairman of the commission, Riverside lawyer Brian Percy, said Rogan brings much to the job.

"It's an exciting combination of skills that Kevin brings to the CPRC – law enforcement, management and especially law," he said. "He has the ability to look at the big picture, which is critical for that position. The commission looks forward to the support that a manager of this caliber will bring."

The CPRC advises the mayor and city council on police/community relations, as well as reviews and investigates citizen complaints against officers. The manager plans, coordinates and supervises staff work of the commission, while providing support to commission members in carrying out their duties.
